

Analysis of NWChem performance

Edoardo Aprà

*William R Wiley Environmental Molecular Sciences Laboratory
Battelle, Pacific Northwest National Laboratory,
K8-91, P.O.Box 999, Richland, WA 99352*

Abstract

This talk will report and discuss benchmark results of the NWChem computational chemistry code on various parallel computers. Benchmark data was collected applying Quantum Mechanical methods (e.g. Density-Functional Theory, MP2) on molecular fragments of increasing size (corresponding in a increasing computational complexity in terms of aggregate use of memory and disk resources). Analysis of performance data will focus both on serial and parallel performance.